Ryan is a Michigan native and former OSU Linebacker that founded the 2nd and Seven Foundation. The mission is to promote reading by providing free books and positive role models to kids in need while encouraging young athletes of the community to pay it forward.

This program began in 1999 as an idea between Ryan, and fellow former players Luke Fickell and Mike Vrabel. Though he didn't look forward to it as a player, Miller explained that he remembered how influential he was when volunteered to read to 2nd graders. Post OSU he missed it. The three then started a camp to raise money to provide books for second grade readers. The first year they furnished books to seven schools (2nd & 7). Nearly 20 years later, the foundation involves 172 schools and universities in 26 states reading to 1000's of children.
